

Interview: Sandeep Chadha, Founder & CEO of Warehouser, end to end warehouse solutions

An interview with Sandeep Chadha, Founder & CEO of Warehouser, an Industrial real estate developer that offers end to end warehouse solutions

We are honored to have Mr. Sandeep Chadha, the visionary Founder and CEO of Warehouser, with us today. With his dynamic leadership, Warehouser has emerged as a pioneering force in the industrial real estate sector, providing comprehensive warehouse solutions tailored to meet the diverse needs of businesses.

Mr. Chadha's wealth of experience and innovative approach have propelled Warehouser to the forefront of the industry, redefining standards and setting new benchmarks for excellence.

What inspired you to establish Warehouser, and what market need or opportunity did you identify that led to its creation?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser originated from a profound insight – while alternative investment in warehousing was gaining momentum in India, the sector lacked seasoned asset managers, specialists, and service providers. Recognizing this gap, our aim was to address the requirements of both domestic and institutional investors.

- By focusing on this specific niche and drawing upon our expertise, Warehouser sought to transform capital deployment, making it more accessible and lucrative for diverse investors.
- This inclusive approach not only addresses a market need but also facilitates knowledge sharing and attracts a wider range of investors to the rapidly expanding warehousing industry.

Can you provide an overview of Warehouser's integrated solution for the acquisition, development, and management of logistics assets in India?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser stands out in the Indian logistics and warehousing landscape by offering an unparalleled end-to-end solution that caters to the requirements of all investor profiles. Our business model is built on three core strengths: Asset Management, Development Execution, and Investment Deployment.

Unlike competitors, we provide a holistic suite of services encompassing land acquisition, regulatory compliance, leasing, development, financing, and exit strategies, all consolidated within a single platform.

This comprehensive approach simplifies the investment journey, eliminating the hassle of dealing with multiple service providers and ensuring seamless operations from inception to fruition.

Our unique value proposition lies in this integrated model, which remains unmatched in the industry, facilitating direct access to investment opportunities while delivering bespoke operational support tailored to individual investor needs.

Additionally, Warehouser's track record underscores its expertise, evidenced by a history of successful exits and exceptional asset management.

How does Warehouser differentiate itself from other players in the logistics and warehousing industry in India?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser sets itself apart in the Indian logistics and warehousing industry by providing comprehensive end-to-end services tailored for both institutional and domestic investors. Unlike other players, Warehouser offers a complete suite of solutions, handling everything from land acquisition and regulatory approvals to leasing, development, funding, and eventual exit, all under one roof.

This integrated approach simplifies the investment process for clients, eliminating the need to engage multiple service providers and streamlining operations from start to finish. Warehouser's unique value proposition lies in its ability to bring opportunities directly to investors' doorsteps while providing operational expertise tailored to the specific needs of different investor types.

Moreover, Warehouser's track record speaks volumes about its competence, with a consistent history of delivering profitable exits and exemplary asset management.

The logistics sector in India is rapidly evolving. How does Warehouser adapt to the changing landscape and stay ahead of the curve?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser remains responsive to the dynamic shifts within the logistics sector in India by maintaining a keen focus on diversity and innovation. This adaptability is evident in our strategic shift from a previous emphasis on e-commerce to our current focus on manufacturing and third-party logistics (3PL).

By closely monitoring market trends and customer needs, we proactively realign our services to align with emerging opportunities and evolving demands. Embracing this change enables us to stay ahead of the curve and effectively cater to the evolving landscape of the logistics industry.

Furthermore, our commitment to innovation ensures that we continuously explore and implement new technologies and methodologies to enhance efficiency, optimize processes, and deliver superior value to our clients.

Through this approach, Warehouser not only adapts to the changing environment but also actively shapes it, positioning ourselves as a leader in the logistics sector in India.

Could you elaborate on Warehouser's approach to acquiring and developing logistics assets, particularly in terms of location selection and infrastructure development?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser adopts a strategic approach to acquiring and developing logistics assets, with a strong emphasis on ensuring comfort and ease for its investors. To achieve this, Warehouser follows a three-pronged approach.

Firstly, it acquires assets through Special Purpose Vehicles (SPVs). This structure not only simplifies the ownership transfer process for institutional investors but also provides them with a clear and transparent investment vehicle.

Secondly, Warehouser leverages its in-house expertise to expedite the approval process for purchased assets. By utilizing its internal capabilities, Warehouser can navigate regulatory requirements efficiently, reducing delays and uncertainties for investors.

This proactive approach ensures that investors can quickly gain access to their acquired assets, enabling them to realize the benefits of their investments in a timely manner. Additionally, Warehouser carefully selects locations for its logistics assets based on strategic considerations such as proximity to transportation networks, market demand, and potential for future growth.

By focusing on location selection and infrastructure development, Warehouser aims to maximize the value of its assets while providing attractive investment opportunities for its institutional clients.

With the growing emphasis on sustainability and technology in logistics, how does Warehouser integrate these elements into its operations and asset management?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser places a strong emphasis on sustainability and technology integration throughout its operations and asset management strategies. Recognizing the growing importance of sustainability in the logistics industry, Warehouser is fully committed to incorporating environmentally friendly practices into its developments.

Each project undertaken by Warehouser is geared towards achieving net-zero status, with a focus on minimizing environmental impact and maximizing resource efficiency. The company takes pride in pursuing LEED certifications for its developments, showcasing its dedication to sustainable building practices.

Moreover, Warehouser embraces the latest advancements in technology to enhance both construction processes and operational efficiency. From utilizing cutting-edge construction methods to implementing innovative logistics solutions, Warehouser stays at the forefront of technological innovation in the industry.

By leveraging technology, the company not only improves the sustainability of its operations but also enhances the overall performance and effectiveness of its asset management strategies.

What are Warehouser's plans for future growth and expansion, and how do you envision the company's role in shaping the future of logistics infrastructure in India?

Sandeep Chadha: Warehouser has ambitious plans for future growth and expansion, with a clear vision of extending its footprint across India. Currently concentrated in Southern India, the company aims to embark on a Pan India expansion in the coming years, targeting regions in the North, East, and West of the country.

What is your success tips for young and aspiring entrepreneurs.

Sandeep Chadha: For young and aspiring entrepreneurs, having a clear vision is paramount. It's essential to know where you want to go and what you want to achieve. However, it's equally important to understand that success doesn't happen overnight.

Persistence and determination are key ingredients. Things might not always go as planned, but it's crucial to remain patient and adaptable. In the dynamic world of business, being flexible and open to change is essential.

Challenges will inevitably arise, but it's how you respond to them that ultimately determines your success. Don't be afraid to pivot or adjust your approach if necessary. Stay focused on your goals, but be willing to embrace new opportunities and learn from setbacks.

Success in entrepreneurship often comes from a combination of hard work, resilience, and a willingness to evolve with the ever-changing landscape of business.

In conclusion, Mr. Sandeep Chadha's insights have shed light on the intricate workings of Warehouser and its commitment to delivering exceptional industrial real estate solutions. His visionary leadership and unwavering dedication to innovation continue to inspire the industry, driving Warehouser towards even greater heights of success.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to Mr. Chadha for sharing his invaluable perspectives with us today, paving the way for a brighter future in the realm of industrial real estate.
